This apparently mis-pressed sleeve was subsequently gifted to him by one of the group. It is believed that The Beatles did not like the first sleeve enumeration system as they wanted more digits to allow all covers to be numbered and not just a batch with double figures up to 10, which Apple had delivered to their offices in Saville Row for the group. Subsequently it is believed that the printers added more noughts to accommodate the Beatles request and sent another batch to Apple, leaving the first run as very rare anomalies.
We are selling this as a missed pressed sleeve and is been sold strictly within our terms and conditions of sale. £4000-5000
